Seven out of the nine total Employer of Veterans awards presented were given to Securitas offices by the Disabled American Veterans (DAV) Department of Texas.

Earl Conley, Securitas human resources manager in Texas, is devoted to supporting veterans. He works closely with the Texas Veterans Commission to partner with representatives from local veterans organizations including Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion, Disabled American Veterans, Order of the Purple Heart and Paralyzed Veterans of America. Each year, these organizations nominate companies that hire veterans for awards.

Conley's efforts were recognized this year when he was notified that multiple Securitas branch offices had won the Employer of Veterans Award for midsize employers from the Disabled American Veterans (DAV), Department of Texas. Of the nine awards presented, seven were won by Securitas branch offices in the Houston, Dallas and Austin areas.

Securitas Branch Manager Sheree Ross was proud to attend the conference. "I was honored to accept the DAV award on behalf of Securitas, and more proud to be a veteran who is a part of an organization that is responsible for employing and assisting other service men and women," said Ross.

The conference was well-attended by members of the various area veterans organizations. "This was truly an opportunity to not only meet with veterans who served in all branches of the military years before my time, but also to hear their experiences and watch their involvement in giving back and helping other veterans," continued Ross.

Last year Securitas USA employed more than 6,500 veterans nationally. As a result of the DAV Texas awards, Securitas USA will also be considered for a national level award.
